In fact, there are many Japanese principles (although if you ask a Japanese they will not agree ;) Clean lines, textures, colors... And a pinch of nature for comfort... European harmony with Japanese inspiration!

Given that traditional Bulgarian architecture shares many principles with the Japanese... This style, I think, is not something alien or simply "modern". Of course, it is a preferred environment not only at home, but also at work by modern people who realized the need for human connection with nature.
